

Signs, Symptoms, and Management of Diverticulitis

Date: Wednesday, October 30, 2024

Time: 12–1 pm (Eastern Time)

Diverticulitis is a gastrointestinal condition when an irregular outpouching of your colon (large intestine) becomes inflamed or infected. It can cause abdominal pain, nausea, vomiting, fever, and constipation. In this talk, we will review what diverticulitis is, what might cause it, and how we treat it.

Featured Speaker: Kevin Knoblock, MHA, MBA, MSN, NP

Kevin is a nurse practitioner in the Division of Gastroenterology at Massachusetts General Hospital. He received training in inpatient/acute gastrointestinal conditions, general gastroenterology, as well as Crohn's disease and ulcerative colitis. He is the manager for the nurse practitioner and physician assistant team for the Division.
