Mehmet S. Demirhan, MD is a distinguished Professor of Orthopedics and Traumatology at Koç University School of Medicine in Istanbul, Turkey. Dr. Demirhan's illustrious career began after earning his medical degree from Istanbul University, followed by specialized training in Orthopedics and Traumatology, including a residency at Heidelberg University in Germany and a fellowship in Sports Medicine at the University of Pittsburgh, USA.

With a deep focus on shoulder and elbow surgery, sports traumatology, and basic science research, Dr. Demirhan has held numerous prestigious positions, including Associate Dean at Koç University and Department Head at the American Hospital in Istanbul.

His contributions to the field are vast, with over 100 publications in peer-reviewed journals and multiple accolades, including the Akif Sakir Sakar Scientific Awards and Certificates of Appreciation from Istanbul and Koç Universities.

As a former President of the European Society for Surgery of the Shoulder and the Elbow (SECEC) and the current president of Turkish Society of Orthopaedics & Traumatology (TOTBID), Dr. Demirhan continues to influence the field through his editorial work and professional affiliations, including his role as a Corresponding Member of the American Shoulder and Elbow Surgeons (ASES) and his editorial leadership in top orthopedic journals.
